Amazing Facts ■

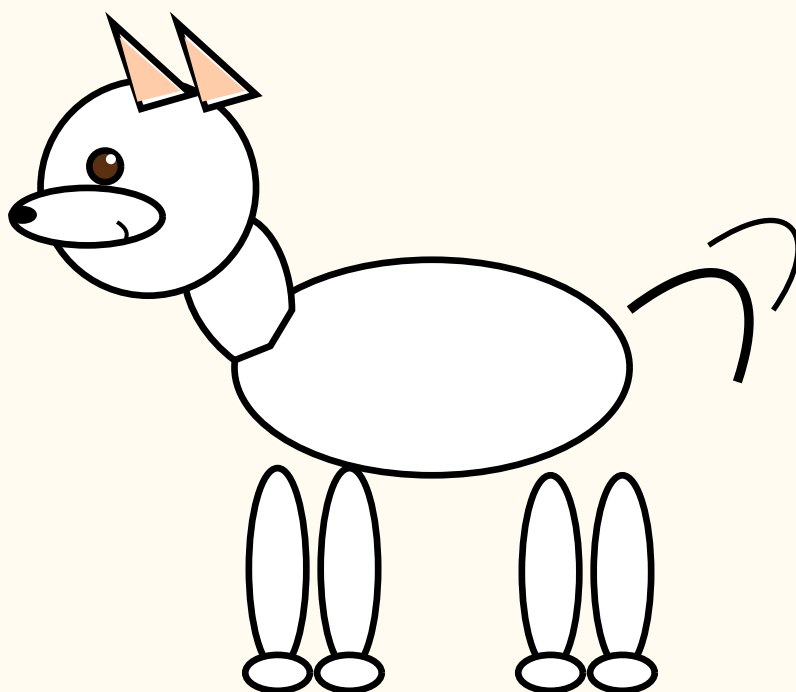

- Dholes are called 'whistling dogs' — they communicate using high-pitched whistles.
- A pack can bring down prey 10 times their own size, like gaur — the world's largest wild cattle.
- Dholes have disappeared from over 82% of their historic range — including Russia and Korea.
- Pups are raised communally — every adult in the pack helps feed and protect them.
- Dholes are excellent swimmers and often drive prey into rivers to exhaust it.
- Despite being fierce hunters, dholes are naturally very shy and rarely seen by humans.

Threats ■■

#	Threat	Impact
1	Habitat destruction and deforestation	CRITICAL
2	Prey depletion from poaching	HIGH
3	Persecution by farmers protecting livestock	HIGH
4	Disease spread from domestic dogs	MODERATE

Colour Me! — Dhole

Dholes have rust-red or tawny fur on their back, fading to white or cream on the underside. Their bushy tail has a dark tip.
